

1 STEVEN C. MITCHELL, ESQ., SBN 124644
2 ROBERT W. HENKELS, ESQ., SBN 255410
3 GEARY, SHEA, O'DONNELL, GRATTAN & MITCHELL, P.C.
4 90 South E Street, Suite 300
5 Santa Rosa, California 95404
6 Telephone: 707/545-1660
7 Facsimile: 707/545-1876
8
9 JAMES V. FITZGERALD, III, SBN 55632
10 McNAMARA, NEY, BEATTY, SLATTERY,
11 BORGES & AMBACHER LLP
12 1211 Newell Avenue
13 Walnut Creek, CA 94596
14 Telephone: (925) 939-5330
15 Facsimile: (925) 939-0203

16
17 Attorneys for Defendants
18 ERICK GELHAUS and COUNTY OF SONOMA
19 20

21 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
22
23 NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

24 ESTATE OF ANDY LOPEZ, BY AND 25 THROUGH SUCCESSORS IN INTEREST,
26 RODRIGO LOPEZ AND SUJAY CRUZ, AND
27 RODRIGO LOPEZ AND SUJAU CRUZ,
28 INDIVIDUALLY,

Plaintiffs,

v.

ERICK GELHAUS, COUNTY OF SONOMA,
DOES 1 – 10, INCLUSIVE,

Defendants.

CASE NO.: CV 13 05124 PJH

DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Date: December 9, 2015
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Courtroom: 3

23
NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

24 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT defendants Deputy Erick Gelhaus and the County of 25 Sonoma ("defendants") shall, and hereby do, move this Court for summary judgment in their favor
26 on December 9, 2015 at 9:00 a.m., before the Honorable Phyllis J. Hamilton, United States
27 District Judge, at the Oakland Courthouse for the United States District Court in the Northern 28 District of California, Courtroom 3, located at 1301 Clay Street in Oakland, California. This

1 motion is brought pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rule 56, and on the basis that
2 plaintiffs cannot establish that defendants violated their constitutional rights, that defendant Deputy
3 Gelhaus is entitled to qualified immunity, and that plaintiffs cannot establish liability on their
4 pendant state-law claims as a matter of law, as set forth below.

5 Said motion shall be based on this Notice of Motion, the Memorandum of Points and 6 Authorities below, the Declarations of Deputy Erick Gelhaus, Deputy Michael Schemmel, James
7 Norris, Paul Kayfetz, Mark Shattuck, Ph.D., Rich Word and Steven C. Mitchell, all filed and served
8 herewith, the factual and legal matters presented to this Court by all parties, on file herein, and any 9 oral argument or further briefing this Court may deem necessary.

10 DATED: November 4, 2015
11

GEARY, SHEA, O'DONNELL, GRATTAN &
MITCHELL, P.C.

13 By /s/ Steven C. Mitchell
14 STEVEN C. MITCHELL
15 Attorneys for Defendants
ERICK GELHAUS and COUNTY OF SONOMA

1
2                   TABLE OF CONTENTS
3

* * *

3	I.	INTRODUCTION .....	1
4	II.	STATEMENT OF ISSUES .....	2
5	III.	SUMMARY OF FACTS .....	3
6	IV.	STANDARD OF REVIEW .....	9
7	V.	LEGAL DISCUSSION .....	11
8	1.	Deputy Gelhaus Is Entitled to Summary Judgment on Plaintiffs' First Claim for Relief under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for Unreasonable Seizure (Fourth Amendment Claim) .....	11
9	A.	Fourth Amendment Legal Standard – The use of deadly force is constitutionally permitted where an officer reasonably believes that either he or others faced a threat of serious physical harm .....	11
10	B.	Deputy Gelhaus is entitled to Summary Judgment on plaintiffs' Fourth Amendment Claim because the undisputable evidence establishes that, as matter of law, he reasonably believed that both he and Deputy Schemmel faced an immediate, deadly threat .....	12
11	C.	The Subsequent Discovery That The AK-47 Turned Out To Be a Replica Is Not Constitutionally Determinative .....	15
12	D.	Deputy Gelhaus Is Further Entitled to Summary Judgment Because He Is Entitled To Qualified Immunity .....	18
13	2.	The County and Deputy Gelhaus Are Entitled to Summary Judgment on Plaintiffs' Fourteenth Amendment Claim (Third Claim for Relief) – Plaintiffs' Cannot Establish A Violation Of The Fourteenth Amendment As A Matter Of Law .....	21
14	3.	The County and Deputy Gelhaus Are Entitled to Summary Judgment on Plaintiffs' State-Law Wrongful Death Claims (Fourth and Fifth Claims for Relief) Because California Courts Apply The Same Standards In Excessive Force Cases as Federal Courts.....	22
15	4.	The County Is Entitled To Summary Judgment Of Plaintiffs' Second Claim Because Plaintiffs Cannot Establish A Basis For Municipal Liability .....	23
16	VI.	CONCLUSION .....	24

1 TABLE OF AUTHORITIES
2
3* * *
4 CASES
5

4	Acosta v. Hill 504 F.3d 1323 (9 th Cir. 2007) .....	17
6	Acri v. Varian Assoc. 114 F.3d 999 (9 th Cir. 1997).....	17
8	Anderson v. Liberty Lobby Inc. 477 U.S. 242 (1986) .....	9
10	Anderson v. Russell 247 F.3d 125 (4 th Cir. 2001) .....	20
12	Ashcroft v. al-Kidd 131 S. Ct. 2074 (2011) .....	18
14	Bell v. City of East Cleveland 1997 U.S. App. LEXIS 28738 .....	19
16	Billington v. Smith 292 F.3d 1177 (9 th Cir. 2002).....	12
18	Blanford v. Sacramento County 406 F.3d 1110 (9 th Cir. 2005) .....	16, 17, 20
20	Blossom v. Yarbrough 429 F.3d 963 (10 th Cir. 2005) .....	20
22	Bowles v. City of Porterville 571 Fed.Appx. 538 (9 th Cir. 2014) .....	15, 19, 20
24	Celotex Corp. v. Catrett 477 U.S. 317 (1986) .....	9
26	City and County of San Francisco v. Sheehan 135 S. Ct. 1765 (2015) .....	11, 18, 21
28	///

1	Drummond v. City of Anaheim 343 F.3d 1052 (9 th Cir. 2003) .....	19, 20
2
3	Elliott v. Leavitt 99 F.3d 640 (4 th Cir. 1996) .....	17, 19
4
5	Garcia v. United States 826 F.2d 806 (9 th Cir. 1987) .....	12
6
7	Gonzalez v. City of Anaheim 747 F.3d 789 (9 th Cir. 2014) .....	21
8
9	Graham v. Connor 490 U.S. 386 (1989) .....	11, 17, 22
10
11	Harlow v. Fitzgerald (1982) 457 U.S. 800 .....	18
12
13	Hayes v. City of San Diego (Hayes II) 57 Cal.4 th 622 (2013) .....	22
14
15	Hayes v. County of San Diego (Hayes III) 736 F.3d 1223 (9 th Cir. 2013) .....	22
16
17	Heien v. North Carolina 135 S. Ct. 530 (2014) .....	11
18
19	Hernandez v. City of Pomona 46 Cal.4 th 501 (2009) .....	23
20
21	Hunter v. Bryant 502 U.S. 224 (1991) .....	14
22
23	Lal v. California 746 F.3d 1112 (9 th Cir. 2014) .....	12, 19
24
25	Los Angeles v. Heller 475 U.S. 796 (1986) .....	22, 23
26
27	Matsushita Electrical Industry Co., Ltd. v. Zenith Radio Corp. 475 U.S. 574 (1986) .....	9
28

1	Messerschmidt v. Millender 132 S.Ct. 1235 (U.S. 2012) .....	10
2
3	Monell v. Department of Social Services of City of New York 436 U.S. 658 (1978) .....	2, 22, 23
4
5	Monroe v. City of Phoenix 248 F.3d 851 (9 th Cir. 2001) .....	17
6
7	Pearson v. Callahan 555 U.S. 223 (2009) .....	10, 18
8
9	Penly v. Eslinger 695 F.3d 843 (11 th Cir. 2010) .....	15, 20 10
11	Porter v. Osborn 546 F.3d 1131 (9 th Cir. 2008) .....	21
12
13	Price v. Sery 513 F.3d 962 (9 th Cir. 2008) .....	12
14
15	Reese v. Anderson 926 F.2d 494 (5 th Cir. 1991) .....	20
16
17	Reichle v. Howards 132 S. Ct. 2088 (2012) .....	18
18
19	Reynolds v. County of San Diego 84 F.3d 1162 (9th Cir. 1996) .....	12, 14, 17
20
21	Riley v. California 134 S. Ct. 2473 (2014) .....	11
22
23	Ryburn v. Huff 132 S. Ct. 987 (2012) .....	11
24
25	Scott v. Harris 550 U.S. 372 (2007) .....	9, 10, 13
26
27	Scott v. Henrich 39 F.3d 912 (9 th Cir. 1994) .....	10, 12, 13, 19
28

1	Smith v. City of Hemet 394 F.3d 689 (9 th Cir. 2005) .....	11, 12, 19
2
3	Smith v. Freland 954 F.2d 343 (6 th Cir. 1992) .....	20
4
5	T.W. Elec Serv., Inc. v. Pacific Elec. Contractors Association 809 F.2d 626 (9 th Cir. 1987) .....	9
6
7	Tennessee v. Garner 471 U.S. 1 (1985) .....	12
8
9	United States v. Martinez-Jiminez 864 F.2d 664 .....	16
10
11	Wilkinson v. Torres 610 F.3d 546 (9 th Cir. 2010) .....	11, 21
12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

STATUTES

2	Federal Rules of Civil Procedure
3	Rule 56(a) .....	9
4	15 CFR 272.1 – 272.3 .....	6
5	15 U.S.C. § 5001 .....	6
6	42 U.S.C.
7	§ 1983 .....	2, 3, 11, 22, 23
8	California Penal Code
9	§ 20150 .....	6
10	§ 20155 .....	6
11	§ 20170 .....	7
12	§ 20170(a) .....	16
13	§ 20175 .....	7

LAW OFFICES OF
GEARY,
SHEA,
O'DONNELL
GRATTAN &
MITCHELL
P.C.

1                   I.2                   INTRODUCTION

3                   Under well-established law, an officer is constitutionally permitted to use deadly force when
 4 the officer has an objectively reasonable belief that the person he encounters poses an imminent
 5 threat of death or serious injury. Here, the undisputed material facts show that Deputy Gelhaus and
 6 Deputy Schemmel saw a person walking on a public sidewalk in a residential neighborhood known
 7 for gang activity carrying a gun that looked exactly like an AK-47 assault rifle. The undisputed
 8 facts show that the person failed to comply with commands to drop the gun and, instead, turned and 9 began to point the AK-47 assault weapon towards the deputies. It cannot be disputed that from 10 approximately 60 feet away, an individual turning and pointing a real AK-47 toward an officer, or 11 toward anyone, poses anything other than an immediate threat of death or serious injury. Finally,
 12 the undisputed facts show that a reasonable officer in the shoes of Deputy Gelhaus could have
 13 formed the belief that the weapon at issue here, which was designed to look exactly like a real AK-
 14 47, was in fact a real assault weapon and that therefore his life and the lives of others were in 15 immediate danger.

LAW OFFICES OF GEARY,
 SHEA,
 O'DONNELL,
 GRATTAN &
 MITCHELL
 P.C.

27                   ///

28                   ///

Under these undisputable material facts, the use of deadly force was objectively reasonable. The fact that the replica weapon was subsequently determined, upon physical inspection, to be an air pellet gun without the mandated flame orange tip, does not change the constitutional analysis from an objective perspective. The law rightly requires that the actions of a law enforcement officer in using deadly force cannot be judged based upon matters learned after the fact – here, notably, that the individual turned out to be 13 years old and that he had a replica airsoft “Kalashnikov AK-47”, not a real AK-47. While the outcome here resulted in the profoundly sad loss of a young life, a loss that is unquestionably unfathomable for plaintiffs and for many others, Deputy Gelhaus’s split second decision to shoot before he and others were shot by an individual who appeared to be brandishing an AK-47 assault weapon after ignoring commands to drop the weapon, must by law be viewed in the context of the tense, uncertain and rapidly evolving circumstances confronting the deputies at the time. Under that legal standard, as terribly tragic as the outcome is for all involved, Deputy Gelhaus did not violate the Fourth Amendment as a matter of law. Summary judgment is warranted.

II.

STATEMENT OF ISSUES

The issues to be decided, and the short answers, are:

ISSUE NO.1: Is Deputy Gelhaus entitled to summary judgment on Plaintiffs’ First Claim for Relief under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for unreasonable seizure (Fourth Amendment Claim)?

ANSWER: Yes. Deputy Gelhaus reasonably believed that the suspect posed an immediate and deadly threat to his safety and to the safety of others. In addition, Deputy Gelhaus is shielded from liability by qualified immunity.

ISSUE NO.2: Is the County entitled to summary judgment on Plaintiffs’ Second Claim for Relief against the County under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for unconstitutional customs and practices?

ANSWER: Yes. Absent underlying constitutional violation, Plaintiffs’ municipal liability claim also fails. In addition, Plaintiffs has not shown any facts to prove a viable Monell claim against the County.

///

1 ISSUE NO.3: Are Deputy Gelhaus and the County entitled to summary judgment on
 2 Plaintiffs' Third Claim for Relief under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for interference with familial integrity
 3 (Fourteenth Amendment Claim)?

4 ANSWER: Yes. Plaintiffs have not shown any facts to prove the heightened
 5 constitutional standard (purpose to harm unrelated to a legitimate law enforcement objective) for a
 6 Fourteenth Amendment Claim.

7 ISSUE NO. 4: Are Deputy Gelhaus and the County entitled to summary judgment on
 8 Plaintiffs' Fourth and Fifth Claim for Relief under California law (wrongful death and 9 survivorship)?

10 ANSWER: Yes. Plaintiffs' state law claims are to be judged from the same objective
 11 reasonableness standard as the Fourth Amendment claim, and the undisputed material facts prove 12 that Deputy Gelhaus acted objectively reasonable under the facts and circumstances of this case.

13 In sum, summary judgment should be granted in Defendants' favor on all claims and 14 Plaintiffs' Second Amended Complaint should be dismissed in its entirety.

15 III.

16 SUMMARY OF FACTS

17 On October 22, 2013, at 3:15 p.m., Deputy Gelhaus and Deputy Michael Schemmel were on 18 regular patrol and drove northbound on Moorland Avenue in Santa Rosa in a marked Sheriff's 19 patrol car. Deputy Gelhaus, a 24-year veteran of the Sheriff's Department, was acting as a Field
 20 Training Officer for Deputy Michael Schemmel who had just transferred from the Marin County
 21 Sheriff's Department. Declaration of Erick Gelhaus ("Gelhaus Decl."), ¶¶3-4. As they approached
 22 the intersection of West Robles, Deputy Gelhaus saw an individual, now known to be Andy Lopez
 23 ("Lopez"), walking northbound on Moorland on the west sidewalk. The individual had his back to 24 the deputies and a hooded dark sweatshirt. He carried what Deputy Gelhaus believed was an AK-
 25 47 in his left hand, held by the pistol grip, with the barrel pointed toward the ground. Id., ¶5.

26 The Moorland Avenue neighborhood was known by Deputy Gelhaus and by the Department
 27 to involve an extremely high level of dangerous gang activity, with a long and substantial history of 28 serious violent crimes, including weapon related crimes. Gelhaus Decl., ¶4; Deposition Transcript

1 of Juan Valencia (“Valencia D.T.”), 4:11-15, 8:11-17, 44:21-47:2, 48:15-48:25, 49:14-50:10,
 2 53:14-55:8, attached as Exh. A to Declaration of Steven C. Mitchell (“Mitchell Decl.”). In fact,
 3 Deputy Gelhaus had, in the past, confiscated an AK-47 less than two blocks away from the subject
 4 intersection. Gelhaus Decl., ¶4.

5       In response to seeing an individual walking in a residential neighborhood carrying what he
 6 believed to be an AK-47, Deputy Gelhaus put out a “Code 20” call, an emergency call which 7 signals available units to respond immediately. Id., ¶¶5-6. Deputy Schemmel, who was driving the 8 patrol car, was alerted to the individual by Deputy Gelhaus. He, too, immediately formed the belief
 9 that the individual was carrying an AK-47 assault weapon, based upon its distinctive profile,
 10 including the “banana-shaped” 30-bullet magazine. Declaration of Michael Schemmel (“Schemmel 11 Decl.”), ¶¶3-4.

12       Deputy Schemmel blasted the siren (“chirped it”) and activated all emergency lights and 13 flashers of the patrol car to alert the individual to their presence, in the hopes he would drop the 14 gun. Id., ¶¶4-5. After a brief stop, he then proceeded through the intersection and brought the 15 patrol car to a stop angled into the southbound lane approximately 40 feet from the individual.<sup>1</sup> Id.
 16 He moved the patrol car forward in order to clear the intersection so that cross-traffic on West
 17 Robles would not come between their patrol car and the individual with the AK-47, and so that they 18 could be in a better position to confront the individual. Id.

19       As Deputy Schemmel was moving the car forward beyond the intersection, Deputy Gelhaus
 20 removed his seatbelt, opened his door, and drew his service weapon to position himself in the “V”
 21

22       <sup>1</sup> The distances involved are set forth in detail in the Declaration of Mark Shattuck, Ph.D.
 23 (“Shattuck Decl.”) Dr. Shattuck did a Time and Distance Analysis based upon the data gathered as 24 part of the investigation of the shooting. Dr. Shattuck calculated that when the deputies first saw 25 Lopez walking with the weapon, he was approximately 130 feet away. The closest distance which 26 Lopez was from the deputies was approximately 40 feet, when their patrol car came to a stop and 27 Lopez was still walking away from them. The actual shooting took place when Lopez was 28 approximately 62 feet from Deputy Gelhaus, as Lopez continued to walk away from them after they vehicle came to a stop and after commands were issued. Shattuck Declaration, ¶¶7-9. The exact distances involved are not critical, since the weapon Lopez was carrying was indistinguishable from a real AK-47 at any of the possible distances involved, or anything close to the same. Id., ¶¶10-11, Exh. A, see also, Kayfetz Decl. An aerial photograph showing where the patrol car came to a stop is also attached Gelhaus Decl., ¶6 Exh. A.

1 of his open door when they came to a stop.<sup>2</sup> Gelhaus Decl., ¶8; Schemmel Decl., ¶5. Despite the
 2 blasting of the siren and activation of the lights and flashers, the individual with the AK-47
 3 continued to walk away from the patrol car.<sup>3</sup> Deputy Schemmel observed the individual briefly
 4 glance over his right shoulder to look backwards after the siren was blasted. Schemmel Decl., ¶5.

5 As the patrol car came to a stop, Deputy Gelhaus was now in position with his gun drawn
 6 and crouched behind his car door adjacent to the A pillar. He gave at least one command to “Drop
 7 the gun!” Gelhaus Decl., ¶8. The one independent lay witness in position to hear the same, who
 8 was had recently parked his car across the field and was farther away from the deputies than Lopez,
 9 heard the deputy give two loud, clear and distinctive commands to “Drop the gun!” before he heard
 10 shots fired. Deposition Transcript of Jordan Walker (“Walker D.T.”), 8:12-9:23, 10:6-12:24,
 11 13:24-16:24, 17:24-18:11, Exh. 51, attached as Exh. B. to Mitchell Declaration. Deputy Schemmel
 12 also heard Deputy Gelhaus give Lopez at least one loud, direct command to the individual to “Drop 13 the gun!” immediately after Deputy Gelhaus got out of the patrol car. Schemmel Decl., ¶5.

14 Unfortunately, rather than dropping the weapon as commanded, the individual turned his 15 whole body toward the deputies in a clockwise direction. And, although the individual had been 16 walking with the gun pointed down toward the sidewalk during the period of time when he was 17 walking away from them, both deputies observed the barrel of the AK-47 come up and towards
 18 them when the individual turned to face them. Id., ¶5; Gelhaus Decl., ¶8. In response to believing
 19 that he and others were about to be shot by an AK-47 assault weapon with a 30-bullet magazine,
 20 Deputy Gelhaus fired 8 rapid shots, 7 of which hit the individual.<sup>4</sup> Id.; Shattuck Decl., ¶¶12-15.

---

21           <sup>2</sup> The position of the deputies immediately after the shooting was captured on a cell phone video, a
 22 frame of which is attached to the Declaration of James Norris (“Norris Decl.”) as Exh. E.

23           <sup>3</sup> The blasting of the siren is also heard at the end of the emergency Code 20 radio call. Shattuck
 24 Dec., ¶9, Exh. C.

25           <sup>4</sup> Deputy Schemmel was slower getting into position to shoot by virtue of being the driver and
 26 therefore having to brake the vehicle to a stop, put it in park, etc., whereas Deputy Gelhaus was able 27 to take his seat belt off, draw his gun, open his door and begin to exit as the patrol car was slowing
 28 to a stop. At the time of hearing the command or commands to “Drop the gun!” from Deputy Gelhaus, Deputy Schemmel was opening his door and beginning to draw his weapon. When shots were fired, he was trying to get into a crouch position behind his car door in behind the A pillar. By the time he was in position to shoot, Deputy Gelhaus had fired his rounds, and the individual had fallen backwards, and the weapon had dropped from his hands, so there was no longer any reason to shoot. Schemmel Decl. ¶¶5, 7.

1 Deputy Gelhaus stopped shooting when the individual was falling to the ground and the weapon
 2 was no longer in his hands. Gelhaus Decl., ¶8; Shattuck Decl., ¶¶7-9, 14.<sup>5</sup> The same independent
 3 lay witness who had heard Deputy Gelhaus's commands also confirmed that the shots were fired in 4 "rapid succession." Walker D.T., 20:25-21:10.

5 The deputies remained in position crouched behind their car doors, yelling at the individual
 6 to "show them their hands" or commands to that effect, until additional units arrived. Schemmel
 7 Decl., ¶6. Once additional units arrived, with the individual no longer holding the weapon and with 8 cover from other officers, Deputy Gelhaus and others approached the individual on the ground. Id.;
 9 Gelhaus Decl., ¶9.

10 Deputy Gelhaus then approached the individual who was now prone on the ground. As he 11 was standing over the weapon and physically picked it up to move it away from the individual, he 12 realized for the first time that there was something about the weapon that looked different from a
 13 real AK-47 and it was lighter in weight than a real AK-47. Gelhaus Decl., ¶9. In fact, upon close
 14 inspection by investigating officers, it turned out that the weapon which Lopez was carrying and 15 pointed at the deputies was a plastic pellet gun known as a "Kalashnikov AK-47." Norris Decl.,
 16 ¶¶5-12. The replica weapon, manufactured and sold under a license from Mikhail Kalashnikov
 17 himself, the inventor of the real AK-47 assault weapon, replicates every relevant detail of a real
 18 AK-47. It is designed to look exactly like a real AK-47 in terms of the length, color, size and shape
 19 of the stock, the pistol grip, the placement of the trigger, the distinctive banana shaped magazine
 20 clip, the fore grip, the piston assembly, the sites, the length of the barrel, and every other detail. Id.<sup>6</sup>

21 The one distinguishing aspect between a "Kalashnikov AK-47" and a real AK-47 is a flame
 22 orange tip on the barrel of the gun, which is required by both federal and state law.<sup>7</sup> Id. A picture

---

23 <sup>5</sup> As discussed in further detail below, defendants' experts examined all physical evidence,
 24 including the bullet trajectories involved, and determined that the evidence corroborates that the 25 shots were initiated when Lopez was facing the deputies, with the weapon coming up and toward 26 them, all consistent with the testimony of the deputies. Norris Decl., ¶¶13-15; Shattuck Decl., 27 ¶¶12-15. Plaintiffs submitted no Rule 26 expert report or analysis to the contrary.

28 <sup>6</sup> See also Deposition Transcript of Mike Skrocki ("Skrocki D.T."), 6:1-13, 11:15-20, 12:2-23,
 14:3-15:9, 15:10-17:14, 18:14-19:2, 21:23-22:2, attached as Exh. C. to Mitchell Decl.

<sup>7</sup> See, 15 U.S.C. Section 5001 (a-c), 15 CFR 272.1 – 272.3; Penal Code section 20155 (requiring all imitation firearms to comply with Federal markings requirements); Penal Code section 20150 (making it illegal to alter markings on an imitation firearm to make it look more like a firearm).

1 showing the same replica Kalashnikov AK-47 sold with the lawfully mandated flame orange tip
 2 compared to a real AK-47, is attached below. Id., ¶9 Exh. D.

13 In fact, it is illegal to remove the mandated bright orange tip (Cal. Penal Code § 20175),
 14 illegal to brandish a replica firearm (Cal. Penal Code § 20170) and indeed illegal to walk down a 15 sidewalk on a public street without the weapon being covered or packaged (Cal. Penal Code §
 16 20175). See also, Norris Decl., ¶¶6, 12. These laws exist due to the obvious potential for the exact 17 type of tragic, understandable confusion which can be and is caused by the indisputable visual 18 similarity between these replica guns, made under license from the real manufacturers, and real
 19 guns. Id.; See also Skrocki D.T., 23:10-25:8, Exh. 85. Indeed, from the distances involved in this 20 case (over 100 feet when Lopez was first observed, approximately 40 feet at the closest, and 21 approximately 60 feet at the time of the shooting), the Kalashnikov AK-47 which Lopez was 22 carrying and pointed toward the deputies was visually indistinguishable from a real AK-47.
 23 Declaration of Paul Kayfetz (“Kayfetz Decl.”), ¶¶10-13, Exhs. B1 and B2; Norris Decl., ¶¶11-12, 24 Shattuck Decl., ¶¶10-11.<sup>8</sup>

---

25
 26
 27
 28
 8 Defendants' experts performed a Visibility Study, showing what the replica AK-47 looked like compared to a real AK-47 under the same lighting conditions, in the same setting, with a person wearing the same clothing and same height and weight of Lopez, from the same vantage point of Deputy Gelhaus on the date of the shooting. Comparisons were also made as to the visibility had the orange tip been present. Photographs comparing the same at the closest distances involved are attached to Kayfetz Decl. as Exhs. B1 and B2.

1           The orange tip which had been on the end of the Kalashnikov AK-47 which Lopez was
 2 carrying on the day of the incident came off two days earlier. Deposition Transcript of BP (“BP
 3 D.T.”), 14:14-16:7, attached as Exh. D to Mitchell Decl.<sup>9</sup> When it broke off, Lopez and his friends
 4 discussed ways to try to put the orange tip back on, including using tape and taking it back to the 5 store, because it looked “dangerous because it looked too much like a real gun” Id., 19:21-21:16.
 6 They were unable to tape it back on and unable to take it back to a store because no parent was 7 home. Id., 21:21-22:8, 24:24-25:25.

8           The day before the shooting, Lopez came to the house of the friend who owned the 9 Kalashnikov AK-47 and asked to borrow it. His friend told him he did not want him to take it with 10 the broken tip, and that he was going to paint the gun. Deposition Transcript of HP (“HP D.T.”),
 11 18:6 – 17, attached as Exh. E to Mitchell Decl. Lopez took the gun with the missing orange tip
 12 anyway, telling his friend he would be sure to cover the gun up when walking with it in public.
 13 His friend specifically told Lopez to cover the gun up because without the orange tip, it could be 14 confused for a real gun. Id., 18:18-19:25.

15           On the afternoon of the shooting, shortly before leaving his house and walking down the 16 street with the replica AK-47 without the orange tip, Lopez’s friend reminded him to cover the gun
 17 up when walking around with it in public. Lopez told the friend that he intended to do so, by 18 putting it in a backpack or bag (“because he don’t want, like, the gun to get seen by other people”),
 19 but that he was unable to find anything to cover it up. BP D.T., 62:1-63:17. He eventually left his 20 house with the replica weapon, without an orange tip, openly displayed and walked northbound on 21 Moorland Avenue. This is when Deputy Gelhaus and Deputy Schemmel encountered Lopez and 22 saw what they believed was a real AK-47 assault rifle.

23           AK-47’s have a 30-bullet magazine capable of unloading in either an automatic or semi-
 24 automatic setting in a matter of seconds.<sup>10</sup> Norris Decl., ¶15; Gelhaus Decl., ¶10. The large bullets
 25 they fire easily rip through both car doors and armored vests. Id. Gelhaus had prior personal

---

26           <sup>9</sup> Initials, rather than full names, are used when referring to deposition transcripts for depositions of 27 witnesses who were minors.

28           <sup>10</sup> The cyclic rate of fire of an AK-47 is 600 rounds per minutes, and the bullets are fired at a velocity of 2400 feet per second. Norris Dec., ¶15.

1 experience being fired upon with AK-47's in the military and had been involved in confiscating
 2 several of the weapons in Sonoma County, including in the specific neighborhood where the
 3 shooting occurred. Gelhaus Decl., ¶10. Thus, Deputy Gelhaus had an objectively reasonable belief
 4 that when that weapon came around and up, after yelling commands to "Drop the gun!", that he,
 5 Deputy Schemmel and anyone in the vicinity could have been rapidly killed or seriously injured by 6 bullets from an AK-47 if the firing was allowed to commence.

7 IV.

8 STANDARD OF REVIEW

9 Summary judgment is proper if the pleadings, the discovery and disclosure materials on file,
 10 and any affidavits show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the movant is 11 entitled to judgment as a matter of law. See Fed. R. Civ. Rule 56(a). The moving party bears the 12 initial burden of demonstrating the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Celotex Corp. v.
 13 Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). The moving party, however, has no burden to disprove matters
 14 on which the non-moving party will have the burden of proof at trial. The moving party need only 15 demonstrate to the court that there is an absence of evidence to support the non-moving party's 16 case. Id. at 325.

17 Once the moving party has met its burden, the burden shifts to the non-moving party to "set 18 out 'specific facts showing a genuine issue for trial.'" Id. at 324. To carry this burden, the non-19 moving party must "do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the 20 material facts." Matsushita Electrical Industry Co., Ltd. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586
 21 (1986). "The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence... will be insufficient; there must be 22 evidence on which the jury could reasonably find for the [non-moving party]." Anderson v. Liberty
 23 Lobby Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 252 (1986). The non-moving party must set forth "significant probative 24 evidence tending to support the complaint" and may not rely on the mere allegations in the 25 pleadings in order to preclude summary judgment. T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Pacific Elec.
 26 Contractors Association, 809 F.2d 626, 630-631 (9th Cir. 1987); see also Scott v. Harris, 550 U.S.

27 372 (2007) ("...the mere existence of some alleged factual dispute between the parties will not
 28 defeat an otherwise properly supported motion for summary judgment; the requirement is that there

1 be no genuine issue of material fact.”).

2 Summary judgment in deadly force cases requires the examination of all evidence in the 3 record, including medical reports, contemporaneous statements by the officer, and the available
 4 physical evidence. Scott v. Henrich, 39 F.3d 912, 914 (9th Cir. 1994). Granting summary
 5 judgment is appropriate in such cases where the Court concludes, “after resolving all factual
 6 disputes in favor of the plaintiff that the officer’s use of force was objectively reasonably under the 7 circumstances.” Id. at 915; see also, Scott v. Harris, supra, 550 U.S. at 381 fn. 8 (After appropriate
 8 review of record, “whether [officer’s] actions have risen to a level warranting deadly force...is a 9 pure question of law,” not a question of fact reserved for a jury.).

10 The existence of qualified immunity is also appropriately decided at summary judgment.
 11 See, Pearson v. Callahan, 555 U.S. 223, 231 (2009)(According to Supreme Court, “qualified
 12 immunity is an immunity from suit rather than a defense to liability [and is thus] effectively lost if a 13 case is erroneously permitted to go trial.”). “The doctrine of qualified immunity protects 14 government officials ‘from liability for civil damages insofar as their conduct does not violate 15 clearly established statutory or constitutional rights of which a reasonable person would have 16 known.” Messerschmidt v. Millender, 132 S. Ct. 1235, 1244 (U.S. 2012).

17 Accordingly, the immunity “gives government officials breathing room to make reasonable
 18 but mistaken judgments and protects all but the plainly incompetent or those who knowingly violate
 19 the law.” Id. “Whether an official protected by qualified immunity may be held personally liable
 20 for an allegedly unlawful official action generally turns on the ‘objective legal reasonableness’ of 21 the action, assessed in light of the legal rules that were ‘clearly established’ at the time it was taken.”
Id.

22 Id.

23 ///

24 ///

25 ///

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

V.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

1           1. Deputy Gelhaus Is Entitled to Summary Judgment on Plaintiffs' First Claim
2 for Relief under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for Unreasonable Seizure (Fourth
3 Amendment Claim)

4           A.     Fourth Amendment Legal Standard - The Use Of Deadly Force Is 5           Constitutionally Permitted Where An Officer Reasonably Believes That 6           Either He Or Others Faced A Threat Of Serious Physical Harm.

7           All claims that law enforcement officers have used excessive force—deadly or otherwise—
8 must be analyzed under the Fourth Amendment and its “reasonableness” standard. Smith v. City of 9 Hemet, 394 F.3d 689, 700 (9th Cir. 2005); see also Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386, 395 (1989).
10          “The ‘reasonableness’ of a particular use of force must be judged from the perspective of a 11 reasonable officer on the scene, rather than with the 20/20 vision of hindsight.” Graham, supra,
12 490 U.S. at 396-397. The inquiry is an objective one: “The question is whether the officers’ actions
13 are ‘objectively reasonable’ in light of the facts and circumstances confronting them.” Id. at 396.
14          “The Constitution is not blind to the fact that police officers are often forced to make split-second 15 judgments.” City and County of San Francisco v. Sheehan, 135 S. Ct. 1765, 1775 (2015).

16          As the Supreme Court has emphasized, “the ultimate touchstone of the Fourth Amendment
17 is ‘reasonableness.’” Riley v. California, 134 S. Ct. 2473, 2482 (2014). “To be reasonable is not to 18 be perfect, and so the Fourth Amendment allows for some mistakes on the part of government
19 officials, giving them fair leeway for enforcing the law in the community’s protection.” Heien v.
20 North Carolina, 135 S. Ct. 530, 536 (2014). Any calculus of reasonableness must therefore 21 embody allowance for the fact that officers must make these split-second judgments “in 22 circumstances that are tense, uncertain, and rapidly evolving.” Graham, supra, 490 U.S. at 396-
23 397; see also Ryburn v. Huff, 132 S. Ct. 987, 991-992 (2012)(Supreme Court urges caution “about 24 second-guessing a police officer’s assessment, made on the scene, of the danger presented by a
25 particular situation.”). A reasonable use of deadly force encompasses a range of conduct, and the 26 availability of a less intrusive alternative will not render conduct unreasonable.” Wilkinson v.
27 Torres, 610 F.3d 546, 551 (9th Cir. 2010).

28          ///

1           The most determinative issue to consider when evaluating the reasonableness of a specific
 2 use of force is whether the officer reasonably believed that a suspect posed an immediate threat to
 3 the safety of the officer or others. See, Smith v. City of Hemet, 394 F.3d 689, 702 (9th Cir. 2005).
 4 Deadly force is therefore reasonable where the officer has probable cause to believe the suspect
 5 poses a significant threat of death or serious injury. Tennessee v. Garner, 471 U.S. 1, 3, (1985).<sup>11</sup>
 6 As stated by the Ninth Circuit, “our case law requires that a reasonable officer under the 7 circumstances believe herself or others to face a threat of serious physical harm before using deadly
 8 force.” Price v. Sery, 513 F.3d 962, 971 (9th Cir. 2008).

9           It is well established that an officer is justified in using deadly force where a suspect
 10 threatens him with a weapon such as a gun or knife. Smith v. City of Hemet, supra, 394 F.3d at 704
 11 (“where a suspect threatens an officer with a weapon such as a gun or a knife, the officer is justified
 12 in using deadly force”); See also, Billington v. Smith, 292 F.3d 1177, 1185 (9th Cir. 2002) (deadly 13 force justified where suspect grabbed the officer’s gun after resisting arrest); Reynolds v. County of 14 San Diego, 84 F.3d 1162, 1168 (9th Cir. 1996) (deadly force justified when suspect swung a knife at 15 the officer); Scott v. Henrich, 39 F.3d 912, 915-916 (9th Cir. 1994) (Officers acted reasonably
 16 under Fourth Amendment when using deadly force to stop a man who had opened an apartment
 17 door and pointed a gun at them); Garcia v. United States, 826 F.2d 806, 812 (9th Cir. 1987)( deadly 18 force reasonable when used to defend against an assailant armed with a stick and a rock); *Lal v.
 19 California*, 746 F.3d 1112, 1117 (9th Cir. 2014) (officers complied with the constitution when they 20 used deadly force to stop a man advancing towards them holding a large boulder over his head).

21           B.     Deputy Gelhaus Is Entitled To Summary Judgment On Plaintiffs’ Fourth
 22 Amendment Claim Because The Undisputable Evidence Establishes That, As 23 Matter Of Law, He Reasonably Believed That Both He And Deputy
 24 Schemmel Faced An Immediate, Deadly Threat

25           Summary judgment is appropriate in deadly force cases where, after examination of all
 26 evidence available in the record, and resolving all material factual disputes in the plaintiffs’ favor, it

---

27           <sup>11</sup> Per the Ninth Circuit, the terms “probable cause,” as it is used in Tennessee v. Garner, and 28 “reasonable belief” reflect the same standard. Price v. Sery, 513 F.3d 962, 967-969 (9th Cir. 2008). Either way, the standard to justify the use of deadly force is an objective one, requiring an objective belief of an imminent threat of death or serious harm. Id. at 969.

1 cannot reasonably be disputed that the officer's use of force was objectively reasonable under the
 2 circumstances. See, Scott v. Henrich, supra, 39 F.3d at 914; Scott v. Harris, supra, 550 U.S. at 381,
 3 Fn. 8. Here, even when viewed in the light most favorable to plaintiffs, the totality of evidence in 4 this case establishes the objective reasonableness of Deputy Gelhaus's use of force as a matter of 5 law.

6 First, it is undisputed that Deputy Gelhaus and Deputy Schemmel both saw what they
 7 believed was an individual walking down the street in a neighborhood known for gang activity,
 8 carrying a weapon they believed was an AK-47 assault rifle. Gelhaus Decl., ¶¶4-8; Schemmel
 9 Decl., ¶¶3-5. Indeed, the objective evidence is overwhelmingly consistent. The Code 20
 10 emergency call (Gelhaus Decl., ¶6; Schemmel Decl., ¶4), the "chirp" of the siren (Id.; Id.; Walker
 11 D.T., 11:7-12:11), the use of emergency lights and flashers (Id.), the commands to "Drop the Gun!"
 12 (Id., ¶8; Id., ¶5; Id., 14:17-16:7)," the deputies crouching behind their car doors (Schemmel Decl., 13 ¶¶5-6; Norris Decl., ¶14, Exh. E), etc., all reinforce and confirm their testimony. Since the 14 evidence also reflects the seriousness with which the deputies responded to seeing the AK-47 (i.e., 15 the Code 20 emergency call, the use of emergency lighting, the commands, and the fact they 16 crouched behind their car doors for protection), it also objectively confirms that the deputies' belief
 17 they were confronting an individual carrying a real AK-47 was genuine.

18 Second, the physical evidence corroborates both deputies' testimony that, at the time shots
 19 were fired, Lopez had turned to face them while bringing the barrel of the AK-47 weapon up and 20 around in their direction. The autopsy reports, bullet trajectories, wounds, relative positions of the 21 deputies and Lopez, the manner in which Lopez fell, and where the weapon he was holding fell, all
 22 show, with the assistance of expert analysis, that both deputies faced an immediate and deadly
 23 perceived threat, just as they have both testified to. See, Norris Decl., ¶¶13-15; Shattuck Decl., 24 ¶¶12-15.

25 ///

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

LAW OFFICES OF
GEARY,
SHEA,
O'DONNELL,
GRATTAN &
MITCHELL
P.C.

1       Third, the evidence establishes that a reasonable officer from any of the distances involved
 2 in this matter (from 130 feet or more at the beginning, to approximately forty feet away at the
 3 closest) could have believed that the “Kalashnikov AK-47” air gun was real.<sup>12</sup> The gun shares the 4 same exact profile and defining characteristics as a real AK-47 and was in fact designed under
 5 license from the original designer of the assault rifle. Norris Decl., ¶¶5-10. A visibility study
 6 confirms that, at distances ranging from approximately forty feet to 125 feet, a reasonable officer
 7 could not have distinguished an airsoft AK-47 that lacked the bright orange tip mandated by law
 8 from a real assault rifle. See, Id., ¶11. And it is undisputable that the gun at issue in this case
 9 lacked the bright orange tip mandated by law. See, Id., ¶¶5-6, Exh. B; Gelhaus Decl., ¶9, Exh. D;
 10 BP, D.T., 14:14-16:7.

11       That an officer would be likely to mistake Lopez’s gun for a real one was in fact foreseen by 12 the gun’s manufacturer, leading it to warn any purchasers that:

13                   ANY ALTERATION AS TO THE COLORATION AND/OR 14 MARKING OF THIS PRODUCT TO MAKE THIS PRODUCT
 15 LOOK MORE LIKE A FIREARM IS DANGEROUS, MAY CAUSE
 16 CONFUSION, MAY BE MISTAKEN TO BE A REAL FIREARM
 17 BY LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS OR OTHERS, AND MAY 18 BE A CRIME.

19 Skrocki D.T. 23:10-25:8, Exh. 85. Indeed, plaintiff’s own friends, who were his own age, 20 recognized the substantial dangers posed by the visual similarities of the replica weapon without the 21 orange tip, and warned Lopez regarding the same. BP D.T., 19:21-21:16; HP D.T., 18:18-19:25. It
 22 simply cannot be said that it was objectively unreasonable for both deputies to believe that the AK-
 23 47 was real, and for them to react as a law enforcement officer is trained to react, as though it was 24 real.

25       Finally, expert analysis confirms Deputy Gelhaus’s personal knowledge of the extraordinary
 26 danger that an AK-47 posed to the deputies at the time of the incident. See, Norris Decl., ¶15. It
 27 simply cannot be disputed that an AK-47 poses one of the most terrifying and immediate threats

---

28       <sup>12</sup> The dispositive issue is not whether “another reasonable interpretation of events can 29 be...constructed after the fact,” or whether “reasonable officers could disagree on the issue.” See,
 30 Reynolds v. County of San Diego, 84 F.3d 1162, 1170 citing Hunter v. Bryant, 502 U.S. 224, 228
 31 (1991). Rather, the relevant inquiry is whether a “reasonable officer could have believed that his 32 conduct was justified.” Id (emphasis added).

1 possible, given its capabilities, including the ability to unload 30-bullets in a matter of a few
 2 seconds, the ability of the bullets to rip through car doors and armored vests and a muzzle velocity
 3 of 2400 feet per second.

4 Given these undisputed facts, the use of deadly force in self-defense and in the defense of
 5 others is reasonable as a matter of law. In Bowles v. City of Porterville, 571 Fed.Appx. 538 (9th
 6 Cir. 2014), a California Highway Patrol Officer shot and killed a fleeing suspect after the suspect
 7 pivoted and pointed a metallic object at the officer. The suspect was later found to be unarmed, but
 8 the officers did find a cologne bottle at the scene of the incident. According to the Court, the 9 “pivotal issue” was whether the officer’s fear that the suspect was about to shoot him was 10 reasonable, and “[w]hile one might speculate as to other causes for [the officer’s] real but mistaken
 11 fear, plaintiffs [were not able to point] to any evidence that might support such speculation.” Id. at 12 540-541. The Court acknowledged that the officer had been required to make a “split second 13 judgment” in a situation that was “tense, uncertain, and rapidly evolving.” Id. And it found that the 14 officer’s “testimony [was] internally consistent and consistent with other known facts.” Id. The 15 Court therefore affirmed summary judgment for the defendants. Id.

16 Here, the evidence before this court is far more robust than that available in Bowles, supra,
 17 and yet, like in Bowles, is consistent with Deputy Gelhaus’ testimony and supports the conclusion
 18 that his fear of immediate deadly harm was reasonable. Also as in Bowles, there is no evidence that 19 could reasonably support any speculation to the contrary. Deputy Gelhaus was required to make a 20 split-second judgment in this “tense, uncertain, and rapidly evolving” situation where an individual
 21 who failed to comply with commands to drop a weapon designed to look like a real AK-47 assault
 22 rifle began pointing that rifle at the deputies. That split-second judgment was reasonable as matter
 23 of law. See also, Penley v. Eslinger, 605 F.3d 843, 853-854 (11th Cir. 2010)(Deadly force used by 24 sniper against a fifteen-year-old student armed with an air pistol modified to look like a real 25 weapon reasonable given reasonableness of sniper’s fear of imminent threat posed by weapon).

26 C. The Subsequent Discovery That The AK-47 Turned Out To Be A Replica Is 27 Not Constitutionally Determinative.

28 Plaintiffs allege that the use of force at issue in this case was unreasonable because Lopez

1 “posed no danger or threat to defendant Gelhaus or anyone else.” See, SAC, ¶43. Plaintiffs are
 2 presumably relying on the ultimate fact that the AK-47 turned out to be a realistic replica, and thus
 3 “posed no danger or threat.” Any such argument fails for at least two reasons.

4 As a preliminary matter, while mere possession of a replica does not by itself justify the use
 5 of deadly force, it is simply not true to say that possession of a replica firearm is not “dangerous.”
 6 In United States v Martinez-Jiminez, 864 F.2d 664, 666-668 (9th Cir. 1989) the Ninth Circuit
 7 considered whether a “totally plastic and extremely light” toy gun constituted a “dangerous
 8 weapon” sufficient to support a conviction for armed robbery under federal law. The Ninth Circuit
 9 answered the question in the affirmative, finding that use of the toy gun during the commission of a
 10 robbery harms victims by creating fear of a deadly threat, requires law enforcement agencies to 11 respond differently due to an apparent threat to human life, and “creates a likelihood that the 12 reasonable response of police and guards will include the use of deadly force.” Id. at 666-667; See 13 also, Cal. Penal Code § 20170(a)(statute prohibiting open display of imitation firearm in public
 14 space). This is to say nothing of the facts that the gun at issue here is “not a toy.” See, Skrocki 15 Depo., Ex. 85 (warning by manufacturer of gun includes admonishment that it is not for children 16 and that removal of the orange tip could result in confusion by law enforcement).

17 Regardless, the issue is not whether the AK-47 by itself is or is not dangerous, but whether 18 Deputy Gelhaus was reasonable, in light of the specific facts and circumstances confronting him,
 19 when he concluded that it was. In Blanford v. Sacramento County, 406 F.3d 1110, 1112-1114 (9th 20 Cir. 2005) two deputies used deadly force when confronting a man walking around a residential 21 neighborhood carrying a two-and-a-half foot long sword. The officers justified their use of force on 22 the grounds that the man did not listen to their repeated commands to drop the weapon, that he was 23 acting erratically, and that he was trying to enter an unknown residence and thus believed to pose a
 24 danger to those inside. As it turned out, the man had been listening to loud music on his 25 headphones and thus could not hear the commands. He had just taken anti-psychotic medication.
 26 And the house he had been trying to enter was his own. “In hindsight,” the Ninth Circuit agreed,
 27 plaintiff’s claim that he did not pose a deadly threat was reasonable. See, Id. at 1115-1116.

28 “However,” the Court demurred, “the reasonableness of a particular use of force must be

1 judged from the perspective of a reasonable officer on the scene, rather than with the 20/20 vision
 2 of hindsight.” Id. citing Graham, supra, 490 U.S. at 396. “[F]rom this perspective,” the Court
 3 concluded, “the deputies had cause to believe that [the man] posed a serious danger to themselves
 4 and to anyone in the house or yard that he was intent upon accessing, because he failed to heed
 5 warnings or commands and was armed with an edged weapon that he refused to put down.” Id. at 6 1116. Accordingly, and on this basis, the Court affirmed summary judgment for the deputies.

7 Here, like in Blanford, and from their perspective, Deputies Gelhaus and Schemmel had 8 cause to believe that Lopez posed a serious danger to themselves and to anyone nearby because 9 Lopez failed to heed commands and was perceived to be armed with a deadly assault rifle that he
 10 refused to put down and was in the process of pointing at the deputies. Also per Blanford, whether 11 Lopez did or did not ultimately pose a threat “in hindsight” is immaterial. The circumstances
 12 confronting Deputy Gelhaus at the time of the subject incident, just like those confronting the 13 deputies in Blanford, objectively and reasonably led him to conclude that Lopez posed an 14 immediate and unacceptable risk of harm.

15 “The Fourth Amendment does not require omniscience, and absolute certainty of harm
 16 need not precede an act of self-protection.” Elliott v. Leavitt, 99 F.3d 640, 641 (4th Cir. 1996).
 17 Rather, the Constitution only requires that an officer act reasonably, and, given the objective
 18 evidence before this court, it cannot reasonably be disputed that Deputy Gelhaus did so here. See 19 also, Monroe v. City of Phoenix, 248 F.3d 851, 862 (9th Cir. 2001)(“Surely [an officer is] not
 20 required to wait and be seriously injured or killed before exercising his judgment and bringing the 21 situation under control.”) overruled on other grounds by Acosta v. Hill, 504 F.3d 1323 (9th Cir.
 22 2007); Reynolds v. City of San Diego, 858 F. Supp. 1064, 1072 (S.D. Cal. 1994)(“The Courts
 23 cannot ask an officer to hold fire in order to ascertain whether the suspect will, in fact, injure or 24 murder the officer. The high number of officer mortalities in recent years illustrate the 25 unreasonableness of such a notion.”) affirmed in part and remanded in part by 84 F.3d 1162 (9th
 26 Cir. 1996), overruled in part by Acri v. Varian Assoc., 114 F.3d 999 (9th Cir. 1997).

27       ///

28       ///

1                   D.     Deputy Gelhaus Is Further Entitled to Summary Judgment Because He Is
 2                   Entitled To Qualified Immunity.

3                   Qualified immunity protects government officials and shields them “from liability for civil
 4                   damages insofar as their conduct does not violate clearly established statutory or constitutional
 5                   rights of which a reasonable person would have known.” Harlow v. Fitzgerald (1982) 457 U.S.
 6                   800, 818. A court may grant qualified immunity on the ground that a purported right was not
 7                   ‘clearly established’ by prior case law, without resolving the often more difficult question whether
 8                   the purported right was violated at all. Pearson v. Callahan, 555 U.S. 223, 226 (2009).

9                   For a constitutional right to be clearly established, its contours must be sufficiently clear
 10                  such that “every reasonable official would have understood that what he is doing violates that 11                  right.” Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 131 S. Ct. 2074, 2083 (2011). A case need not be directly on point,
 12                  “but existing precedent must have placed the statutory or constitutional question beyond debate.”
 13                  Id.; see also Reichle v. Howards, 132 S. Ct. 2088, 2093 (2012). “This exacting standard gives 14                  government officials breathing room to make reasonable but mistaken judgments by protecting all
 15                  but the plainly incompetent or those who knowingly violate the law.” City and County of San Francisco v. Sheehan, 135 S. Ct. 1765, 1774 (2015).

17                  The Supreme Court has repeatedly warned that, for purposes of qualified immunity, clearly
 18                  established law must not be established at a high level of generality. al-Kidd, supra, 131 S. Ct. at 19                  2084. “The general proposition, for example, that an unreasonable search or seizure violates the 20                  Fourth Amendment is of little help in determining whether the violative nature of particular conduct
 21                  is clearly established.” Id. “Qualified immunity is no immunity at all if ‘clearly established’ law
 22                  can simply be defined as the right to be free from unreasonable searches and seizures.” Sheehan,
 23                  supra, 135 S. Ct. at 1775-1776.

24                  Defendants are not aware of any case law that would clearly establish that an officer violates
 25                  the Fourth Amendment by using deadly force to defend himself and others against an individual
 26                  who is armed with an AK-47 assault rifle, who refuses to listen to commands, and who turns
 27                  towards the deputies while raising the barrel of the weapon up and in their direction. To the 28                  contrary, the law is well settled that the use of deadly force under these circumstances is objectively

1 reasonable and constitutionally permissible. See, Smith v. City of Hemet, 394 F.3d 689, 704 (9th
 2 Cir. 2005) (“Thus, where a suspect threatens an officer with a weapon such as a gun or a knife, the
 3 officer is justified in using deadly force”); see also Scott v. Henrich, 39 F.3d 912, 915-916 (9th Cir.
 4 1994)(officers did not violate the constitution when they used deadly force after a man opened an
 5 apartment door and pointed a gun at them); Elliott v. Leavitt, 99 F.3d 640, 641 (4th Cir.
 6 1996)(deadly force reasonable in response to handcuffed suspect pointing gun at officers while 7 inside vehicle).

8         Established law does not require an officer to make absolutely certain that a perceived threat
 9 is real before using deadly force. Indeed, the relevant case law established the contrary, requiring 10 only that the officer’s perception of the threat be reasonable, taking into consideration the fact that 11 the officer was required to make a split-second decision in circumstances which are tense,
 12 uncertain, and rapidly evolving. See, Lal v. California, 746 F.3d 1112, 1117 (9th Cir. 2014);
 13 Bowles, supra; Blanford, supra.

14         A Sixth Circuit unpublished case that is directly on point reflects the application of existing 15 law to the facts of this case.<sup>13</sup> In Bell v. City of East Cleveland, 1997 U.S. App. LEXIS 28738, an 16 officer followed a fourteen-year-old boy after the police department had been notified that he had 17 been seen walking in a residential neighborhood with a gun. Witnesses in the area heard the officer
 18 command the boy to drop to the ground. The boy grabbed his shirt instead however, turned around,
 19 and pointed a gun-like object at the officer, who promptly responded with deadly force. The gun
 20 that was found in his possession was a toy BB gun which resembled a real firearm. Id. at 2-3.

21         As did the Ninth Circuit in Bowles, supra, 571 Fed.Appx. at 540, the Sixth Circuit identified 22 that the “crucial determination” was “whether [the officer’s] belief that [the boy] posed a threat of 23 serious physical harm was objectively reasonable.” Id. at 7. Since the objective reasonableness of 24 the officer’s actions must be viewed from his perspective, the Court also noted that:

25                 Under Graham, we must avoid substituting our personal notions of 26 proper police procedure for the instantaneous decision of the officer

---

27         <sup>13</sup> A court may look to whatever decisional law is available to ascertain whether the law is clearly 28 established for qualified immunity purposes, including decisions of state courts, other district courts and even unpublished district court decisions. Drummond v. City of Anaheim, 343 F.3d 1052, 1060 (9th Cir. 2003).

1 at the scene. We must never allow the theoretical, sanitized world of 2 our imagination to replace the dangerous and complex world that 3 policemen face every day. What constitutes "reasonable" action may seem quite different to someone facing a possible assailant than to someone analyzing the question at leisure.

4 Id. at p. 8 citing Smith v. Freland, 954 F.2d 343, 346 (6th Cir. 1992). The Court concluded that the 5 officer's actions were reasonable in light of the facts confronting him, which included a gun that
 6 others confirmed looked real, the boy's failure to comply with commands, and the fact that the boy
 7 pointed the gun at the officer. Id. at 9. Moreover, objective evidence, such as witness testimony,
 8 forensic evidence, and the location of the gun after the incident, corroborated the officer's account
 9 of the events. Id. at 8-12. "Consequently," the Sixth Circuit found that "there [were] no material
 10 questions of fact regarding the issue of [the officer's] qualified immunity" and affirmed summary
 11 judgment. Id. at 12, 16-17.

12 The other circuits are in accord with both the Ninth Circuit, as established by Bowles and 13 Blanford, and the Sixth Circuit, as reflected in Bell. See, Penley v. Eslinger, supra, 605 F.3d at 14 853-854(11th Cir. 2010)(deadly force against a fifteen-year-old student armed with plastic air pistol
 15 reasonable); Anderson v. Russell, 247 F.3d 125, 131 (4th Cir. 2001)(use of deadly force "as a 16 protective measure before directly observing a deadly weapon" reasonable where officers confused
 17 shoe polish container for a firearm); Reese v. Anderson, 926 F.2d 494. 500-501 (5th Cir. 1991)(fear
 18 of imminent threat of significant harm reasonable, thus justifying deadly force, where unarmed
 19 sixteen-year-old passenger in vehicle refused to comply with commands and appeared to reach
 20 down to grab a weapon); Blossom v. Yarbrough, 429 F.3d 963, 968 (10th Cir. 2005)(Fact that a
 21 suspect "was unarmed is not outcome determinative," with Tenth Circuit rejecting "the argument
 22 that only a suspect armed with a deadly weapon poses a physical threat sufficient to justify deadly 23 force.").

24 Accordingly, Deputy Gelhaus did not violate clearly established law. He perceived a direct
 25 and imminent deadly threat. The evidence in this case, including witness testimony, photographs of 26 the gun at issue, autopsy reports, etc., supports his account of the events. And pursuant to well-
 27 established authority, he was not required to wait until he was 100% certain before defending
 28 himself. Qualified immunity therefore applies and Deputy Gelhaus is entitled to summary

1 judgment on Plaintiffs' Fourth Amendment Claim (First Claim for Relief). See also, City and
 2 County of San Francisco v. Sheehan, 135 S. Ct. 1765, 1778 (2015).

3       2. The County and Deputy Gelhaus Are Entitled to Summary Judgment on 4 Plaintiffs' Fourteenth Amendment Claim (Third Claim for Relief) -Plaintiffs'
 5 Cannot Establish A Violation Of The Fourteenth Amendment As A Matter Of
 6 Law

7       Plaintiffs Rodrigo Lopez and Sujay Cruz allege that defendants violated their right to 8 familial integrity guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment's guarantee of due process. See, SAC,
 9 ¶¶55-60. However, only official conduct that "shocks the conscience" is cognizable as a due
 10 process violation. Porter v. Osborn, 546 F.3d 1131, 1137 (9th Cir. 2008). "In determining whether 11 excessive force shocks the conscience, a court must first ask whether the circumstances are such 12 that actual deliberation by the officer is practical." Wilkinson v. Torres, 610 F.3d 546, 554 (9th Cir.
 13 2010). "Where, as here, the officers did not have time to deliberate, a use of force shocks the 14 conscience only if the officers had a purpose to harm the decedent for reasons unrelated to 15 legitimate law enforcement objectives." Gonzalez v. City of Anaheim, 747 F.3d 789, 797-798 (9th Cir. 2014).

16       Here, the entire incident—from when the deputies first saw Lopez, to when Deputy Gelhaus
 17 made a Code 20 emergency call for help, to when he ordered Lopez to drop the gun, to when he 18 fired his weapon—lasted approximately 20 seconds, with the decision to use force made only after 19 Lopez began raising the gun in the deputies' direction. Deputy Gelhaus certainly had no time to 20 deliberate, and there is absolutely no evidence to support any claim that he used force for any other
 21 reason than to defend himself and others.

22       Plaintiffs therefore cannot establish that any conduct "shocks the conscience" and therefore 23 cannot establish a violation of Fourteenth Amendment due process rights as a matter of law. See,
 24 Wilkinson v. Torres, supra, 610 F.3d 546 at 554-555 (Summary judgment on Fourteenth
 25 Amendment claim proper where eleven seconds elapsed during sequence of events leading to use of 26 deadly force and there was no evidence of illegitimate purpose to harm); Gonzalez v. City of 27 Anaheim, 747 F.3d 789, 797 (9th Cir. 2014)(Summary judgment on Fourteenth Amendment claim
 28 affirmed where officers had no time to deliberate and there was no evidence that officers had any

1 “ulterior motive” to use deadly force); Hayes v. County of San Diego (Hayes III), 736 F.3d 1223,
 2 1230-1231 (9th Cir. 2013)(summary judgment for officers affirmed where decision to use deadly
 3 force arose from a “snap judgment” after seeing a knife and there was no evidence that officers
 4 acted for any reason other than self-defense).<sup>14</sup>

5       3. The County and Deputy Gelhaus Are Entitled to Summary Judgement on 6 Plaintiffs’ State-Law Wrongful Death Claims (Fourth And Fifth Claims for 7 Relief) Because California Courts Apply The Same Standards In Excessive
 8 Force Cases As Federal Courts.

9       Plaintiffs allege in their Fourth and Fifth Claims for Relief that defendants are liable under 10 state-law wrongful death theories.<sup>15</sup> Police officers have a duty in California to act reasonably
 11 when using deadly force. Hayes v. City of San Diego (Hayes II), 57 Cal.4th 622, 629 (2013). In 12 determining whether an officer breached, that duty of care, however, California Courts apply the 13 same standards applicable in federal cases. Accordingly, the “‘reasonableness’ of a particular use of 14 force must be judged from the perspective of a reasonable officer on the scene, rather than with the 15 20/20 vision of hindsight.” Hayes II, supra, 57 Cal.4th at 632. citing Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S.
 16 386, 396 (1989). The reasonableness standard in state court also afford officers discretion to accommodate the difficulty of their task:

17       [A]s long as an officer's conduct falls within the range of conduct that 18 is reasonable under the circumstances, there is no requirement that he 19 or she choose the 'most reasonable' action or the conduct that is the 20 least likely to cause harm and at the same time the most likely to 21 result in the successful apprehension of a violent suspect, in order to 22 avoid liability for negligence.

23       Id. And “[s]ummary judgment is [is still] appropriate when the trial court determines that, viewing
 24 the facts most favorably to the plaintiff, no reasonable juror could find negligence.” Id.

---

25       <sup>14</sup> Plaintiffs also allege that the County of Sonoma is liable in their Third Claim for relief. The 26 County, however, cannot be liable under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 unless plaintiffs can show that the 27 constitutional deprivation was committed pursuant to official policy or custom. See, Monell v.
 28 Department of Social Services, 436 U.S. 658, 690 (1978). Plaintiffs do not allege any facts in support of this theory. In any event, since plaintiffs cannot establish that Deputy Gelhaus violated the Fourteenth Amendment, they cannot establish that the County of Sonoma can be liable. See,
Los Angeles v. Heller, 475 U.S. 796, 799 (1986)

25       <sup>15</sup> Plaintiffs title their Fifth Claim for Relief “Survivorship.” Survivorship,” however, is not an 26 independent substantive claim, only affords standing under California law. See, Hayes v. County of 27 San Diego, 736 F.3d 1223, 1228-1229 (9th Cir. 2013)

1       Here, as set forth above, Deputy Gelhaus acted reasonably as a matter of law. Accordingly,
 2 and since he acted reasonably under the Fourth Amendment, he acted reasonably under state-law
 3 negligence principles. Defendants are therefore entitled to summary judgment on plaintiffs' state
 4 law wrongful death claims. See, Hernandez v. City of Pomona, 46 Cal. 4th 501, 513
 5 (2009)(California Supreme Court holds that collateral estoppel bars re-litigation of state-law
 6 negligence claim after defense verdict in federal excessive force claim because issue resolved
 7 against plaintiffs in federal court, i.e., whether officers acted with reasonable care, was "precisely
 8 the issue" now raised in state court).

9           4. The County Is Entitled To Summary Judgment Of Plaintiff's Second Claim
 10 Because Plaintiffs Cannot Establish A Basis For Municipal Liability.

11          The law is well established that a municipality cannot be held liable in a 42 U.S.C. § 1983
 12 action under a respondeat superior theory of liability. Monell v. Department of Social Services of 13 City of New York, 436 U.S. 658, 690 (1978). Instead, to establish liability against a municipality, a 14 plaintiff must establish that the constitutional deprivation was committed pursuant to official
 15 municipal policy or custom. Id. Of course, where a plaintiff is unable to establish a constitutional
 16 deprivation, the plaintiff cannot establish that the municipality is liable either. See, *Los Angeles v.
 17 Heller*, 475 U.S. 796, 799 (1986) ("[N]either Monell....or any other of our cases authorizes the 18 award of damages against a municipal corporation based on the actions of one of its officers when 19 in fact the jury has concluded that the officer inflicted no constitutional harm.").

20          Here, as outlined above, plaintiffs cannot establish the existence of a constitutional
 21 deprivation as a matter of law. In any event, there is no evidence that the County's use of force
 22 policies, hiring practices, training practices, or any other policy, custom, or practice contributed to 23 any alleged constitutional violation. See, Declaration of Rich Word; Deposition Transcript of 24 James Naugle, 4:12-24; 93:15 – 95:8, attached as Exh. F to the Mitchell Decl. The County of 25 Sonoma is therefore entitled to summary judgment on plaintiffs' Second Claim for Relief.

26          ///
 27          ///
 28          ///

LAW OFFICES OF GEARY,
 SHEA,
 O'DONNELL,
 GRATTAN &
 MITCHELL
 P.C.

1 VI.
2

3 CONCLUSION
4

5 Given the undisputed facts known to Deputy Gelhaus at the time his split-second decision to 6 use his duty weapon was made, his use of deadly force was objectively reasonable from the 7 perspective of a law enforcement officer. Had the AK47 turned out to be real, no one could dispute
8 that any other response would have been appropriate. The tragic fact that the weapon later turned 9 out to be a replica made to look exactly like a real AK47, and not a real AK47, does not change the constitutional and legal analysis which must be applied. As sad as the loss is for all involved, defendants are entitled to summary judgment.

10 DATED: November 4, 2015

GEARY, SHEA, O'DONNELL, GRATTAN &
11 MITCHELL, P.C.

12 By /s/ Steven C. Mitchell
13 STEVEN C. MITCHELL
14 Attorneys for Defendants
15 ERICK GELHAUS and COUNTY OF
16 SONOMA
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28